

Marco Meloni is a Medical Consultant and Professor at the University Hospital of Tor Vergata in Rome.

Graduated in Medicine and Surgery in 2009, he subsequently specialized in Geriatrics Sciences, and achieved a PhD in Regenerative Surgery in 2018.

He has carried out clinical activities related to Diabetology and specifically to the clinical, surgical and preventive management of diabetic foot disease since 2008.

He is currently the medical director of the Diabetic Foot Center at the University Hospital of Tor Vergata in Rome.

He is a Member of the European Wound Management Association Board (Diabetic Foot Committee), Diabetic Foot Lazio Regional Study Group Inter-Society SID-AMD (Italian Diabetology Society – Association of Diabetologists).

He is currently in the Panel for the Development of Italian Guidelines on the Diabetic Foot Disease. Author of 76 peer-reviewed scientific publications focused on the problems related to the diabetic foot and partly to Diabetology/Endocrinology.

Author of the Fast-track Pathway, a tool for managing the diabetic foot in a cooperation between Hospital Diabetic Foot Service and Community.

Speaker in several national and international conferences.

Editorial Board in the position of Review Editor for the journal Frontiers in Clinical Diabetes and Healthcare Diabetes Inequalities.

Guest Editor for the Journal of Clinical Medicine, MDPI, since 2022.
