A. Personal Statement

I am a diabetologist and podiatrist based in Prague. I have dedicated my professional and academic experience mainly to diabetes with specialist interest in whole problematics of diabetic foot and diabetes education. I undertook my medical training in Prague Faculty hospitals and have long-time clinical experience in internal medicine inpatient as well as diabetes and diabetic foot outpatient. In 2001, I underwent a study visit at King's College Hospital Diabetic Foot Clinic in London and in 2003 a study visit at FSA Central Hospital Internal Medicine Dpt., Akureyri, Island.

Since 2007, I am an Assistant teacher at Charles University, lecturing pre-graduate courses for students of medicine and physiotherapy. I also lecture post-graduate courses in diabetology/podiatry. Concerning diabetes education and educational tools, in 2016 I became an internationally certified Conversation Map™ Expert Trainer and I lecture educational courses for health care professionals in this topic nationally.

I am currently working in Diabetes Center, Military University Hospital Prague, as a part of the multidisciplinary team. I am regularly representing our hospital at national and international conferences. Besides my clinical, academic and scientific career, I am systematically working on public popularization of diabetes and its complications. I cooperate with Diabetes Patient Associations on educational projects and publish papers focused on diabetes in public journals. I am author of oral presentations on diabetic foot prevention in Senior Centers.
